Choosing the last six commissioners

Your Message

Having attended or watched most of the meetings of the 2010 commission, I observed that ability of individual commissioners to help reach agreement was important and unrelated to politics. Two of the 2010 commissioners, who appeared to me to have very similar political views, at the same end of the political spectrum, were the most helpful and the most disruptive individuals in the commission's work. I hope that you can discern this quality from the material you are reviewing for picking the final six.
